RESEARCH INTEREST

My research centers on the theory of partitions, number theory, combinatorics, special functions, algorithms and related areas. I have an interest in generating the integer partitions. The algorithm that I published in 2012 is considered the most efficient algorithm for generating the integer partitions. I am collaborating with George E. Andrews on truncated theta series. The first paper of this study appeared in november 2012, and the second in february 2018. In 2017, I published the Lambert series factorization theorem. This general result allowed me to obtain new connections between the seemingly disparate branches of the additive and multiplicative number theory. Few papers of this investigation appeared in 2017 and 2018. Recently, I published the first algorithm for proving the non-trivial linear homogeneous partition inequalities. Currently I am working on q -series and on further aspects of partitions and their amazing relationship with Rogers-Ramanujan's enigmatic identities.
